REMODELING (architecture)—Continued

Record interiors of 1977. il(pt col) plans diags Archit Rec 161:102-3, 106-9, 114-28 Ja '77

Contents: More than new surfaces: signs of a new commitment to mass transit under historic Philadelphia [5th Street subway station]. Old and new are beautifully mixed in this architect's office outside Boston [office of Crissman & Solomon, Watertown, Mass.]. Squash/1: for player and spectators an elegant sports environment [Mamaroneck, N.Y.]. Cast-off industrial space salvaged and rejuvenated by Minneapolis architects. From chaos to clarity: a retail renovation [Leisure world electronics, Baraboo, Wis.]. New space and new character are added in this office rehab [Providence journal publishing company]. Remodeled steamship offices were designed to reflect the client's contemporary image [Relta steamship company offices, Long Beach, Calif.]. Open space from enclosed rooms: an architect's New York penthouse [Franzen apartment]

Record interiors of 1978. il(pt col) plans diags Archit Rec 163:77-9, 84-104 Ja '78

Recycling architectural masterpieces—and other buildings not so great. il(pt col) plans Archit Rec 162:81-92 Ag '77

Contents: Cooper-Hewitt museum in New York City: a turn-of-the-century mansion built by Andrew Carnegie, recycled into the Smithsonian institution's national museum of design. Cincinnati union terminal: a maimed and abandoned landmark that could be maintained, inhabited and successfully re-used as a school for the arts. Madison civic center: a new art gallery and auditorium which grew from a former movie theater and a department store—woven together by new construction. St Louis art museum: upgrading a seventy-year-old building to today's standards. 1894 grand opera house and hotel in Galveston: an exercise in interpretation. It is wrong to preserve old buildings academically and scientifically as yesterday's stage sets for today's players, by H. Hardy and others
